Every time there's an eighth note or eighth rest in the first half of the beat followed by a fourth note on the beat, that fourth note sounds from up beat to the beat of the beat immediately following. What is this worksheet about: Once written alone, an eighth note resembles a fourth note with a flag attached. If the stem is high, the stem descends to the right side of the flag. If the stem is low, the stem rises to the right side of the flag. If two or more notes of a line appear, they are connected with an eighth horizontal line up or down called a bundle. Here's an example. With this you remain silent for the whole first half of the beat and you return with the word 'e' on the beat. "In the next example we see that the first note on the beat of the beat one 'e' is an eighth note. The first eighth note of the beat three will be counted as three down beats and the second eighth will be counted as 'optimism, e'. In the measure two beats one and four contain quarter notes, and beats two and three are divided into two equal octaves. This 'e' is an eighth note. Wouldn't it extend the rhythm? In fact, the answer is 'no'. The second note octave of each beat 'e' is excellent and is counted by pronouncing the word 'e'. When counting octaves, remember that each note represents two metrical equal of one beat, no shorter or longer than ... At the second beat, the down beat this time contains an eighth rest and an up beat contains an eighth note. When writing the counts, use a plus sign (+) for eighth notes. We already know that a whole note sounds for four beats, a half note sounds for two beats, and a quarter note for only one beat. Just like a half note is half of a whole note, a quarter note is half of a half note, in the same sense an eighth note is half of a quarter note. This simply means that, just like it takes two half notes to fill the same amount of time as one whole note, and two quarter notes to fill the same amount of time as one half note, it will take two eighth notes to fill the same amount of time
